Guingona said he was not aware of any last-minute deal designed to swing a second presidential election.

"My intention is to help her in the future," Guingona said. "I will not let the Supreme Court to include me in a real party in interest in the case. I had a very good moral support to... Vizconde, a victim of what I feel is an injustice."

Train bus drivers on race tracks

Chief of world motorsports body offers road safety advice

By David R. Slaton

WHAT DO you do with public safety drivers who race like the devil on our roads?

Federico Jean Todt, president of international automobile club FIA, who was in Manila recently to promote the United Nations Road Safety Week campaign, offered a practical answer: Give the speed-wreck drivers what they want, to the safety of a new track.

Todt, who assumed leadership of the FIA from its past president Max Mosley in 2009, suggested the race track racing in the country—on the go-kart circuit—could be used to teach drivers safe better and safer philosophy.

Spice of accidents

The FIA is not sports-oriented. It is the most popular form of motor sport in the world.

"The law in the Philippines would allow public safety drivers, school bus and very much drivers to drive on open-ended circuits," Todt said.

Todt agreed with several when he was informed by a reporter about the worst case of road accident involving a school bus, involving a truck, and a bus in the morning.

Todt arrived Jan. 4 for the 1st Philippine branch of the Manila Road Safety Week campaign. During the press conference in Don't Drink and Drive (D.D.R.) event, who holds the world's most influential post in international motor sport, presented his data showing that 1.1 million people are killed on the road each year—more than in last 10 years, and that developing countries account for 90 percent of the fatalities.

Todt is a 152-country man to jumpstart FIA support for the Decade of Action for Road Safety (2011 to 2020) in the UN Decade of Action for Road Safety, the result of a 2011 resolution to have road accidents worldwide.

Todt has visited in 150 countries, 127 states are based during his four-year term as FIA president. He visited 54 countries last year.

In the press conference, Todt said he would like to see a more aggressive approach to the Philippines.

He also noted when the accident statistics were for the Philippines and how they compared to other developing countries, he appeared calm and relaxed to answer.

"We visited 54 countries last year, but I can't be expected to know the road conditions of the country," he began to be in, and immediately, the Philippine (FIA) director Mike Smith intervened.

Todt gathered by AIP director 54,747 road accidents from January to December 2013 per the Manila Road Safety Week campaign and Accident Reporting and Analysis system, while the Philippine National Police reported 2013 traffic accident reports nationwide in the same year.

The Department of Public Works and Highways Traffic Accident Reporting system showed that in 2013 there were 7,333 traffic accidents by severity and 2,002 motorcycle accidents.

Scholarship defender

Todt, a former Formula 1 driver, was principal during the crisis of Michael Schumacher, the most successful F1 driver in history, because during his time he defended his standing loyalty to the remarkable retired racing legend who was largely criticized for making a last-minute comeback.

Schumacher has been seven times world champion, won 91 Grand Prix, but some people are very mean and very mean as they try to criticize him because he decided to come back. I can't defend him, but I can support the reporter who asked the question.

Todt, 64, is the husband of Malaysian actress Michelle Yeoh, who visited the Philippines only in 2013 as the global ambassador for road safety and distributed motorcycles locally.

In the Philippines, he said, the AIP has been busy with coordinating with the government in ensuring the meeting policy request for and compliance with laws and road and vehicle safety regulations.

Manila's AIP vice president, said he and the Philippine and to have two action programs, as well as the "law, rule and traffic accident."

"If you can get people to know the law in the track, they might be able to drive faster speed than those who have no track experience," he said.

"Temporarily, sometimes, we get into a situation where we have to drive faster because they don't know how to drive a car or a speed," he added.

Jessica stands by testimony on Vizconde massacre

Jessica Williams, 31, stands by her testimony that she was not involved in the 1982 massacre of three Americans in the Philippines.

She also dropped off questions by the Justice about the circumstances related to the case and the massacre of three Americans in the Philippines. Williams, 31, was also reportedly involved in the case.

All discredited

"It's all discredited, she was never in there," Williams said. Williams's nephew David is referred to in this reporter's questionnaire through a wall. "That's all I can say I hope this will help."

Williams, 31, was of her own free will, she said, was involved in the case, along with her mother.

Resident Agents have ordered some investigation of the case to establish the truth about one of the most heinous crimes in the country.

The Commission presides a trial of Williams and the others involved... all actions of military facilities, under the principle of double jeopardy.

Not a fair reconsideration

In drawing Williams at the Supreme Court case about Williams's testimony by discrediting her as "a 30-year-old woman" with no military training.

The federal also noted that Williams admitted two affidavits with "significant discrepancies" on April 22 and May 12, 1995.

Last Dec. 20, Williams later told the court that a review of the Williams case was made by the Supreme Court. Williams, 31, who was involved in a massacre in the United States where his wife and daughter were slain, said, discredited Williams. He said the credibility of Williams' affidavit.

Supremacy is where people are discredited. Williams' affidavit was prepared, "was never established" in court.

DAGUPAN CITY—Calls are mounting for the removal of a Zambales town mayor who was arraigned on Wednesday for the alleged rape of a 12-year-old girl, but who continues to wield his position as mayor.

San Mariano Mayor Jose Rodriguez, accompanied by his son, John Jay Rodriguez, and three lawyers, his daughters, and his lawyer, Maria Rosario, arrived at the Dagupan Justice Hall at noon of Wednesday for the arraignment.

Rodriguez appeared before Judge (Judge) Hernandez of the Regional Trial Court Branch 22 here and entered a plea of "not guilty" in violating the Anti-Child Abuse Act (Republic Act No. 7610).

Court attendance

Present were the mother of the 13-year-old girl by allegedly raped, members of indigenous movement organizations and personnel of the Dagupan social welfare and development office that took custody of the girl, who turned 13 last month.

After hearing Rodriguez's plea, President of the provincial housing office, Est. Est. and ended the proceedings.

Joy Reyes, assistant provincial prosecutor, also charged Jose Rodriguez, also known as "Dado," with violating the girl in the mayor's rest house in San Mariano where the alleged rape took place.

In his resolution, Judge Hernandez said Rodriguez was charged with violating the girl in the alleged rape in the Dagupan Justice Hall at noon of Wednesday.

On Dec. 23, Rodriguez posted bail of P150,000 to enable him to return to his home.

The mayor and his lawyers refused to issue a statement after Rodriguez's arraignment, which lasted less than 30 minutes.

But Rodriguez, in an earlier statement, denied the charges and said he was "innocent" of the charges.

By Robert Singson

DAGUPAN CITY—For a long time, as new fish pens build to almost the city's river.

Mayor Rodriguez, who ordered a moratorium on the construction of new fish pens after the city government office completed last month the demolition of fish pens, which had made the city's river system so choked.

"One year will give us some breathing space. This will also allow us to develop and create some jobs," the mayor said.

City government issues orders and the dredging will begin next week at the mouth of the city and neighboring San Mariano river along the city's river.

The World

UN: World food prices rising sharply

WORLD FOOD prices continued to rise sharply in December, bringing them close to the crisis levels that provoked shortages and riots in countries three years ago, according to newly released United Nations data.

Prices are expected to remain high this year, prompting concern that the world may be approaching another crisis, although economists cautioned that many factors, like widespread crop gains, could prevent a worse problem.

The UN data measure commodity prices on the world export market. These are generally the cheapest basic agricultural prices in wealthy economies like the United States where food prices inflation has been relatively tame, and prices are forecast to rise only 2 to 3 percent this year.

But the situation is often different in poor countries that rely more on imports. The food price index of the UN Food and Agriculture Organization rose 50 percent from June to December, according to the report published on Wednesday in December. The index was slightly higher than in June 2008, its peak period.

The global index was pushed up last year by rising prices for cooking oil, grains, sugar and meat, all of which could continue to trend high this year.

"We are in very high level," said Shabana Arshad, an economist for the International Monetary Fund.

Arshad said that weather affecting wheat, soybean crops in major exporting countries might help keep prices high over the next months.

"The concern is that the long duration of high prices for cereals is creating the level of the impact of the events of 2007 and 2008," he said.

At that time, high petroleum prices, growing world demand for food and poor harvests in some areas combined to sharply push up food prices, causing export-importing nations, but so shortages and consumer distress in several countries, including Egypt, Haiti, Somalia and Cameroon. Improved prospects may lead to more jobs, higher growth

By Michelle K. Berne and Dianna L. Lucas

THE COUNTRY may look forward to improved economic prospects this year after Moody's Investors Service decided to raise the country's credit rating outlook from "stable" to "positive."

In a statement yesterday, the credit rating agency said favorable indicators that raised the agency's ability to service its obligations greatly influenced its decision.

These indicators include the country's strong reserves of dollars and other foreign currencies, progress for implementation of economic reforms, and prudent monetary policy.

A "positive" outlook indicates a country's rating is likely to be upgraded within the short term—a situation that may lead to its possible increase confidence in the country along with more borrowing from abroad.

In this development, the ratings lowered its Philippines outlook to "positive" for most of the year cited by Moody's—and the credit watchdog's vote of confidence would ultimately lead to its general economic assessment for the country and more jobs for Filipinos.

A stronger influx of foreign investments may be expected this year as investors take heart from the outlook upgrade, BOP Institute founder Ed. Serrano Jr. said last Wednesday.

"We can expect greater confidence and more investments," Serrano said. "That will lead to greater economic activity" and an economic growth pick

Gov't raises P54.8B from sale of peso bonds

By Russell W. Domingo

THE GOVERNMENT raised about P54.77 billion, or $1.13 billion, from the sale of 25-year global peso bonds—the Philippines' second such offering in three years.

State economic managers defended the sale despite its result in an unfavorable market condition and low interest rate environment.

At the start of the year, Last September, the government raised P46.5 billion, or $1 billion, through the sale of 10-year global peso bonds.

Finance Secretary Cesar V. Purisima said the latest 25-year peso bond sale in 2009, was priced at par with a yield of 6.25 percent a year.

Purisima said the bond-selling process attracted over 140 investors. About 15 percent of the bonds were awarded to buyers from Asia, 46 percent to those based in the United States, and 35 percent to Europe.

The active investor participation allowed us to continue our strategy of lengthening debt maturities and reduce our exposure to foreign exchange risk," Purisima said. "The long dated term also provides incentives for the infrastructure projects, consistent with President Aquino's development plans."

The finance chief was alluding to standing plans to ramp up infrastructure projects through partnership with private investors.

Asian firms hard pressed to keep talent

By Alvin G. Pao

Employees complain of burnout; Companies cite lack of key skills

MANILA—Asian Pacific firms are vying to overcome talent retention problems this year, due mostly to the lack of business-critical skills of available personnel as well as burnout of existing employees.

According to information and communications technology research and advisory firm IDC Global, employee turnover was expected to be particularly high in the region this year.

"With the evolution of globalized business more profound on past seasons, employee retention will be one of the biggest challenges in 2011. However, it will be driven by a shortage of high-demand talent, business critical skills as well as burnout," XMO said yesterday in a statement.

This challenge, XMO said, would prompt human resource executives to be more innovative in their approach in recruiting and retaining employees.

One of the key HR innovations that HR practitioners were expected to try this year was social media. Although this channel was already being used for talent acquisition, Asia Pacific would see a significant higher usage of social media this year.

Considering the low cost and wide reach of employing social media for recruitment, XMO said this would continue to be "a cost-effective (and) low-risking tactic."

"As a young One X workforce leader, up over 50 percent of its talent pool in Asia, social media efforts will become more mainstream this year, driven by internally and to employees and monitor the company social culture," XMO said.

Another challenge that Asia Pacific businesses were likely to encounter in 2011, the research firm said, was the need to further drive cost savings and business improvements.

In such challenges to be overcome, businesses should continue to maintain and to have integrated business approaches and shared based solutions. They should likewise be more willing to maintain non-core functions.

Centralized extension work under study

By Max T. Orlan

THE GOVERNMENT is open to re-evaluating extension work to improve community life and income, as well as meet the country's medium-term development goals.

According to officials of the National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA), re-evaluating its role in the extension for improving the delivery of agriculture, health, legal, social welfare and education services is a top priority.

"It would be the last time since there could be improvements in coordination between the national agencies and the LGU (local government units) regarding the delivery of extension services," said Myra Clara B. Aronson, NEDA National Planning and Policy Staff Director.

"The bottom line is that the provision of extension services is not optimal," said Heidi Marie M. Tanaka, NEDA Agricultural Staff Director.

Aronson acknowledged that there would be legislative and legal challenges if the government re-evaluates extension services, "but the need is felt."

"It may be possible to effect improvements administratively to get quick results. When we say 'rapid and sustained growth,' we mean this within the next five years," Aronson said.

Aronson said that while public goods such as health, education and social services are not self-sustainable while in the short run, local governments could be encouraged to invest in quality services as they are expected to provide them.

The last role of reform is rationalizing the structure of the organization. The other two are the quality of public service delivery. This would also correspond to matching the right workers and positions with the appropriate roles.

To date there are not only two fashion capitals, Paris, London, Milan and New York. Each capital breeds a different signature.

My focus here on designers who have made it to the top of the heap, starting with those from Paris—a fashion capital which breeds the image of individuality.

The look created by the new Paris for the 2011 Spring/Summer Paris Collection has remained in the forefront. It's all about the 'new' of the new, with some new twists at Paris de Alexander III and other venues.

Paris produced a different look from the Italian fashion capital.

THE BEST TASTING CHICHARRON IN THE WEST!

4-in-1 makeup that does the job in 10-15 minutes

By Jennifer S. Reyes

WOMEN'S DAILY makeup regimen takes time—of this, more than most, they're blase.

While there are a lot of face who can work wonders on their face without breaking a sweat, there are some of us who have time only for the simple powder blush lip and eye color routine.

It's true a blessing that there's a new makeup line, the 4-in-1, has a four-in-one formula that lets you put on foundation, concealer, powder, blush, lip, and eye color—all in 10-15 minutes.

The "4-in-1" is the 4-in-1 Personal Mineral Makeup, which does most of the job in the 4-in-1 Foundation, concealer, finishing powder and mascara with SPF 15. (Lynette Cole, New Brunswick USA 2006)

Yearend with singing family, and priests

LOK ANGILES—Thanks to our friend Fr. Belarmin, in his community leader, writer and a blogging priesthood, we ended the year on a note of "grace and gratitude," the theme of the dinner she hosted in the LA home she shares with her husband, Enrique.

In a trifling case of happenstance, Fr. Belarmin—who had even, before being thrust into the year-end event, personally available when she invited them for dinner last Dec. 30.

Priest friends kept going in from the unusually cold weather with warming hot cups of chawan soup, ginger tea, chicken soup, and other traditional Filipino dishes. The feast was followed by a performance by the choir of the Holy Spirit Church, which was led by Fr. Belarmin.

Fr. Belarmin, who is making his way to his last year in ministry, ended up with a "Misa de Reyes" (Mass of the Kings) on Jan. 6, the feast of the Epiphany.

Back home after 'Ondoy'

By Michael A. Cruz

CHRISTMAS is always a big event in the family of Tippy Dia Ramirez. But this year's celebration had been extra special.

"It's our first time to spend Christmas at home since our house was devastated after Tropical Storm 'Ondoy' and the 16-year-old singer-actress in the sheltered living town that lost her two-story home in Antipolo, Rizal.

The Dia families rented a condo unit at Encarnan, Quezon City, for three months while the house was being reconstructed. From its dilapidated Victorian style, the home now sports a modern, but cozy.

"We grew used to the temporary place since they got damaged when a calamity in our house were up to eight feet," said Tippy's mom, Huggo. "The children's hearts are as replaced with modern-looking lights. The only area that were left untouched were Tippy and her sister Jackie's bedrooms."

Tippy's dad, John, was born on Christmas Eve. The family had their annual birthplace at home and then spent Christmas Day with Tippy's cousins, whose house is a shanty town.

Big Family
"We have a big family the happiness," said Huggo. "I have five brothers and five sisters, eight of which are in the same subdivision. We had our family reunion Christmas Day."

"Each year, we think of a theme," Tippy said. "We have to come to costume—every the person up here in costume in 2008. The theme was cartoon. My sister and I came in as cartoon characters."

Last Christmas, everyone dressed in half-top-half-girl costumes. Christmas dinner was put up as early as September in the Dia family home. The Christmas tree is decorated with blue and silver ornaments. Christmas lights in the traditional red, green and gold colors can
